Location

The regional capital of Lower Saxony is the perfect location for conference organisers and event organisers. This is primarily thanks to its central location within Germany and proximity to the major cities of Berlin and Hamburg. The transport connections, both by car and public transport, are outstanding. Hannover is a great city thanks to its large park areas and has already been named “Germany’s greenest city.” Numerous sights, such as the Herrenhausen Gardens, Altes Rathaus and old town with lots of historic buildings, are well worth a visit. Hannover has become world-famous thanks to its trade fairs, such as CeBIT, Hannover Messe and IAA Commercial Vehicles. However, the host city of Expo 2000 has much more to offer than just being one of the most important trade fair locations in Germany. In the culture and events sector in particular, Hannover is increasingly making a name for itself: with the Maschseefest, Schützenfest and fireworks competition, the organisers attract many millions of visitors to Hannover each year. GHOTEL hotel & living Hannover is located in the district of Kleefeld, a quiet residential area which is home to numerous banks and insurance companies. You can get to the city centre, trade fair site and Hannover Medical School very quickly. Bus and rail connections close by connect GHOTEL hotel & living Hannover to the city centre and ensure that you are mobile even without a car.
